

Farm News from King County Councilmember Pete von Reichbauer

Dear Friends,

I am pleased to share with you my seasonal Farm Fresh Newsletter. The spring and summer harvests produce the beautiful flowers and fresh fruits and vegetables that attracts bustling crowds to our local farmers markets.

My hope is that this newsletter will encourage you to take advantage of the wonderful agricultural opportunities available in our region. In addition to their high-quality products, local farms are a key component to South King County's economic engine while protecting the environment, preserving local wildlife and contributing to our Northwest culture.

Supporting local agriculture ensures economic diversity and job creation for all King County, particularly for our rural communities. I encourage you to visit these small businesses and have included a map of local markets and farms. For additional information you can visit Puget Sound Fresh (www.pugetsoundfresh.com), an organization created to promote the purchase of locally grown products.

I hope you enjoy this guide and are able to visit a local farm and/or sample some of their delicious products this harvest season.

See you at the market!

With best wishes,

Pete von Reichbauer
